Accommodation in Greytown

Should you want to visit quaint Greytown and you are impressed...where will you stay?

A local realtor's take is "A Country Village with Metropolitan Style."

You may wish to lay your head within the village confines, close to the action, or venture into the countryside on a farm?

After you choose from almost 50 possibilities that we found, how difficult is it practically to access a place?

Computer literacy is an optimum method, as that allows booking ahead. Some places will require full payment to guarantee your stay however.

We began online, who doesn't these days?

But on foot or in a car and making a decision to stay we found a possibility for how to uncover information:

A visit to Greytown Information Centre uncovered, Jason's Travel booklet that suggests Greytown is a unique Victorian village and well worth a visit, also mentions Papawai Marae was the first Maori Parliament. But finding accomodation listings are difficult which is ironic!

The Greytown Information Centre has been proactive and taken upon themselves [as of March this year], to produce a simple accomodation list:

Name of place, address, contact telephone number and capacity as well as cost as of March 2016 and web addresses. They list no fewer than forty seven possibilities including newly-opened main street motels. There are also local providers who have left leaflets with colour photos and information to be uplifted or browsed.

So if you are strolling by and on impulse decide to stay, the Greytown Information Centre list may prove be a good hard copy resource.
